

Gregory V. Button, PhD, is an adjunct faculty member of the School of Public Health at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He has conducted research on disasters and public health crises around the world for over two decades. Prior to his career in academia he was a producer and reporter for public radio and television. He has served as a consultant and advisor to the CDC, the EPA, the United States Senate, the U.S. Congress, many states (including Michigan), and numerous NGO's. As a former U.S. Congressional fellow he served as a health policy advisor in the U.S. Senate. He is a member of the National Risk/Crisis Communication Advisory Board. His work has been published in academic journals, newspapers, magazines, and books.